Geography of Transterritories
addresses those issues
of transborder conflict
that are profoundly
changing global
modes of production,
communication, and
space/time organization.
These changes
have prompted new understandings both of geography and of the geopolitical strategies
devised for coping
with the new reality of constant displacement
and transit.
